

GoAir best performing airline: Airbus

Wadia Group promoted low-cost carrier GoAir has been ranked by Airbus as the best performing airline in the Airbus A320 category operator in Asia Pacific/West Asia/Africa, the airline said in a press on Monday. The award is presented every two year by Airbus based on both fleet utilisation and performance achievements in each region and worldwide and for two categories of fleet size. Their metrics take into account on-time performance as well as severity of the operational interruptions. It has also been included in IATA operational safety audit programme, which assesses operations management and control systems of an airline.

BS REPORTER